BOB DELUCA, J.KINGS FOOD SERVICE PROFESSIONAL'S CFO NOMINATED FOR LONG ISLAND BUSINESS NEWS'S CFO OF THE YEAR AWARD

August, 2013 – (Holtsville, NY) Bob Deluca, CFO of J.Kings Food Service Professionals, New York's largest independent food distributor, has been nominated for Long Island Business News's CFO of the Year Award.

Bob was selected to be a nominee because of his outstanding fiscal leadership and asset management, contribution to J.King's performance, along with his contribution and commitment to his profession, to J.Kings as well as his involvement in the community.

Bob has an extensive background in finance and holds an MBA in General Management and a BA in Accounting. Prior to joining J. Kings, Bob held key financial positions at Newport Media, Newsday, and the American Broadcasting Company.

Since joining the J.King in 2000, Bob has implemented companywide cost savings programs, negotiated capital funding and renegotiated all the company's credit facilities. During these tough economic times, under his direction J.Kings has been able control expenses through competitive bidding in various areas. Proficient in analyzing critical elements of complex financial and business issues, and formulating and integrating effective solutions, Bob brings his expertise to select customers. As part of the J. Kings commitment to providing value added service, Bob provides hands-on assistance to these customers by helping them organize and improve their financial systems. Serving as an advisor to key customers, he also guides them in negotiations in financing and insurance coverage.

"Bob is an integral part of the J.Kings management team and has been a huge driving force in navigating us through these tough economic times. On behalf of J.Kings management and staff, I'd like to say "Congratulations Bob on your nomination!" We're keeping our fingers crossed till September 24th when the CFO of the year is announced." Said John King, CEO of J.Kings when asked about Bob's Nomination.
